T/Comdr. Daniel Marcus William Beak, D.S.O., M.C., R.N.V.R.

"For most conspicuous bravery, courageous leadership and devotion to duty during a prolonged period of operations.

He led his men in attack, and, despite heavy machine-gun fire, four enemy positions were captured. His skilful and fearless leadership resulted in the complete success of this operation and enabled other battalions to reach their objectives.

Four days later, though dazed by a shell fragment, in the absence of the brigade commander, he reorganised the whole brigade under extremely heavy gun fire and led his men with splendid courage to their objective.

An attack having been held up, he rushed forward, accompanied by only one runner, and succeeded in breaking up a nest of machine guns, personally bringing back nine or ten prisoners. His fearless example instilled courage and confidence in his men, who then quickly resumed the advance under his leadership.

On a subsequent occasion he displayed great courage and powers of leadership in attack, and his initiative, coupled with the confidence with which he inspired all ranks, not only enabled his own and a neighbouring unit to advance, but contributed very materially to the success of the Naval Division in these operations."

Daniel Beak was invested with his Victoria Cross by King George V at Valenciennes, France, on 6th December 1918.

In 1921 he was granted a Captain's Commission in the Royal Scots Fusiliers and subsequently was posted, with promotions, to the King's and South Lancashire Regiments. Acting Brigadier by 1940 he was again Mentioned in Despatches. He retired as Major General in 1945.

He married Matilda Catherine Frances Ritchie Wallace on 5th September 1923. They had two sons - Marcus 1927 and Peter 1929 - both born in Portsmouth. Matilda died in Hawkley, Hampshire 3rd June 1930.

General Beak died at Princess Margaret Hospital, Swindon on 3rd May 1967 aged 75, following a long illness, and was buried on the 9th May 1967 at Brookwood Cemetery, Woking, Surrey.
